Setting this up on your channel

The calendar works on its own. These five steps turn it into something that grows the channel.

- 1. Build the real playlist. In YouTube Studio, make a public playlist called "30-Day Standing Strength Challenge for Women Over 50" and add the 25 videos below in this exact order.
- 2. Set it to play in order. In the playlist settings, turn off shuffle and make sure ordering is manual, not date added.
- 3. Pin it to your channel home. Make it the featured section so it is the first thing a new visitor sees.
- 4. Link it in every description and say its name out loud in the first thirty seconds of every new video you publish.
- 5. Print this and hand it out at your in-person classes. Anyone who takes one home has a reason to look you up later.

One thing worth knowing. The big square on the front page already works, before you have built anything. It queues all 25 videos in order on the fly. Once you create the real playlist on your channel, that square can be swapped for one pointing at your own playlist, so the views count toward it and people can subscribe straight from it.
